 The Venetian

1. Following a lovely ceremony at Saint Andrew's Roman Catholic Church, the newlyweds along with their parents and grandparents, released six white doves; symbolizing love, faithfulness, joy, and hope. 2. Silver, black, and white were infused into the color scheme of deep purple and green. 3. Designed by Palermo's Bakery, the four-tiered wedding cake was embellished with Swarovski crystals around each tier and Swarovski crystal monograms. 4. From the bride and groom prep throughout the ceremony and reception, McKay Imaging captured the special moments flawlessly in photography. 5. Tall curly willow with hanging purple variegated dendrobium orchids and red bull embellished with suspended crystals made up the reception tablescapes. 6. Krystle donned a Pnina Tornai mermaid-style gown embellished with Swarovski crystals, a cathedral-length veil, and Christian Louboutin shoes, while Daniel wore a black Calvin Klein tuxedo. 7. Mirage Band entertained guests with live music from the beginning of the reception until the last dance of the evening. For their first dance as newlyweds, the couple held the spotlight to "Then" by Brad Paisley. 8. Dessert included a grand Viennese hour where guests indulged in sweet treats of Haagen Dazs ice cream bars, fruit sushi, freshly made waffles and crepes, in addition to their wedding cake.

Although high school sweethearts Krystle and Daniel dated for over eight years, family and friends knew the couple would eventually get married. A few weeks before March 6, 2010 Daniel asked Krystle to attend his work party with him, but knowing she had work that day Krystle had to decline the invitation. "I went out on a limb and called Krystle's boss, told her my plans, and requested to give her off. She happily obliged," added Daniel.

The two ventured to Central Park, New York City and as they made their way around the lake Krystle stopped to get a better close-up picture of the fountain across the way. As she turned around to call Daniel over, he was already down on one knee asking Krystle to marry him. They celebrated with a bottle of champagne at The Boathouse and toasted to their engagement.

Chosen for its attentive staff, reputation for world-class service, and grand architecture, the reception was held at The Venetian. "The level of service and number of people they have supporting you throughout the process is unparalleled," noted Daniel.
